

A multilingual information package on juvenile delinquency published by NGOs for young people and their parents: how to prevent the growth of crimes committed by minors? Police gives answers to concerned parents.

Crimes committed by young persons under the age of 15 have raised concerns among parents, NGOs and the police. The parents of young people have given serious thought to how to prevent youngsters' crimes and misdemeanors by timely intervention. A group of NGOs therefore compiled for parents and young people an information package on criminal behavior and its consequences. The participating NGOs gathered through their customer services a total of 27 questions. NGOs made informative videos, based upon these questions, for sharing in various channels.

The officer answering the parents' questions is Inspector Hannu Väänänen from Western Uusimaa Police Department. This information package is based on his answers and consists of videos, articles and social media posts. Please like these contents online and share them on your network.
